Hypervisible or Invisible?

- ★ Nicht sichtbar heißt nicht nicht existiert, 'Not visible does not mean not existing'.

EU's National Action Plan against Racism

- ★ The National Action Plan against Racism (NAPAR) 2020–2025 was adopted in response to structural racism as the first comprehensive action plan at the EU level.

Structural racism persists in our societies. Discrimination on the basis of race or ethnic origin – as well as religion or belief – remains widespread, as shown in numerous reports. [...] It is not enough to be against racism. We need to talk about racism. We have to be active against it. (European Commission 2020b: 1,16, 19)

Anti-Asian Racism in NAPAR

- ★ EU-level surveys or data collection on AAR are either nonexistent or scarce.
- ★ (e.g., European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights, European Values Study (EVS), European Social Survey (ESS), Eurobarometer)
- ★ Engagement with civil society organizations is not adequately facilitated.

Yellow peril

- ★ The term 'Yellow Peril', since the 1890s, depicted Asians as villains or as undesirable members of society, who may pose existential threats (Keevak 2011).
- ★ Cf. "Hun Speech" in 1900 ; Kiatschou lease agreement in 1898; Deutsche Zeitung in 1925; Chinese/Samoa coolie in 1903

„Völker Europas, wahret eure heiligsten Güter!“
 “Peoples of Europe, preserve your most sacred goods!”

Gelbe Gefahr, Hermann Knackfuß, 1895

Colonial legacies

- ★ European colonialism in Asia, driven by imperialist countries such as Britain, France, Germany, The Netherlands, Spain, and Portugal invaded and colonized vast Asian nations through the use of military force, land acquisition, enslavement, exploitation of human and economic resources, and the imposition of political domination (Chatterjee and Eaton \(2006\), a.o.).
- ★ Britain exploited vast colonies including India, the Middle East (including present-day Oman, Yemen, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Iraq, Jordan, Palestine), and Southeast Asia (Myanmar (Burma), Sri Lanka (Ceylon), the Maldives, Singapore, Malaysia (Malaya), Brunei, Sarawak, and North Borneo, and Hong Kong) (Johnson 2003, Veevers 2020, Marshall 2001, Keller 2001, Fieldhouse 2006). France stretched its colonization to Zhanjiang in China, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia (then called French Indochina) (Hale 2008, Daughton 2006, Brocheux and Hémery 2011). While The Netherlands built their imperialism through the Indian Ocean trade routes, especially Indonesia (Aryodiguno 2020, Oostindie and Paasman 1998, Laarman 2013), Germany colonized Jiaozhou in China as well as in the Pacific islands (Knoll and Hiery 2010, Mueller 2022, Conrad 2011). Portugal, once invaded India and Southeast Asia, colonized Goa, Macau, and East Timor until the mid-20th century (Anderson 1962, Feldman-Bianco 2001). Spain engaged in colonization, extending invasion to areas such as what is now the Philippines, and northern Taiwan (Boxer 2022, Schmidt-Nowara 2008).

Model minority myth

- ★ Asians continue to be assigned to the 'model minority myth', which is used to stereotype Asians, who are considered to be financially successful, hard working and socially well-assimilated in White culture.

(Toupin and Son 1991, Daniels and Kitano 1988, Hsia 1988, Takagi 1992, Wei 2010, Hartlep and Bui 2020).

The children of immigrants from Vietnam stand out with their brilliant school grades. Their success refutes clichés in the integration debate (Spiewak 2009).

Racialization hegemony

- ★ This dual portrayal, encompassing both the 'Yellow Peril' and 'model minority' myths, draws from orientalist narratives deeply rooted in Europe's (post-)colonial history (Cho 2021, Hasunuma 2020, Kawai 2005, Shim 1998, Li and Nicholson Jr 2021).
- ★ These narratives, acting as instruments of hegemony, reinforce simplistic stereotypes and overlook varied experiences of Asians in Europe (De Cook and Yoon 2021, Yeh 2014, De Leon 2020).

AVE Survey II - When Asian Voices Echo

(Asian Voices Europe 2024)

- ★ 855 out of 1,275 responses (consented and validated-all reside in Europe)
- ★ data collection: 14. June - 6. August 2021
- ★ via online survey in 10 different languages
- ★ the first Europe-wide survey of AAR
- ★ to identify perception of racism, lived experiences of racial discrimination and impact of the pandemic of Asian living in Europe
- ★ mix-method approach; on-probability convenience sampling/snowballing/double coder strategy

Experience of Discrimination by Asian Diaspora

Figure 4: What type of discrimination have you ever been discriminated?

★ This figures (92.2%) surpasses figures from studies of Asian Americans, where 79.68% have reported personal experiences of discrimination based on their race or ethnicity in the context of the US (Borja and Gibson 2021), serving as a reference point.

Experience of Discrimination by Asian Diaspora

★ Reported AAR incidents most frequently occurred on the streets (71%), public transport (61%), but also in educational institutions (14%) and the work place (25%).

This suggests that those who have lived in Europe for a longer period of time are more likely to be exposed to situations of racism and discrimination.

Gendered Discriminatory Experiences

The AAR trends have intersectional faces: Women & Non-binary and gender diverse (NBGD) groups more often, severely experience racism and discrimination.

Gendered Discriminatory Experiences

There were clear gendered patterns of AAR, in particular with regard to incidents of sexual and physical remarks.

Gendered Racism

Racialized Queerness

Queer spaces in Europe are created predominantly White circles, which were deeply ingrained in systematic racial biases and the subsequent exclusion of racial minorities from queer communities have enforced discriminatory practices against people of color (Monro 2020, Knoll and Hiery 1983, Ghaziani 2021, Walcott 2007).

- (3) I've thought for a long time why I was never active in queer groups in Europe. There are plenty of youth groups and clubs for queers, but I realized that they are predominantly whites, and I didn't feel like I belonged as I often received racial slurs there [...] I've come to understand that it means a lot to me to identify as non-White individuals in a White society, especially in terms of our queerness. - 20s, NBGD, in Germany (Gang 2023)

Impacts of racial discrimination

The cumulative effect of such seemingly minor, insidious acts can lead to significant psychological and emotional distress for those targeted.

Figure 20: In general, how did you feel when you were harassed? Select all that apply.

Existential Impact of Racial Prejudice

Confronted with constant marginalization, individuals may internalize these biases, leading to self-blame. In an effort to assimilate into predominantly White societies, they may suppress their identities and conform to Western cultural norms, perpetuating feelings of invisibility and exclusion.

- (4) Reflecting on my background as the child of Vietnamese guest workers, [...] I wasn't even conscious of it, or of how I had internalized racism to the extent that I now understand. [...] I always avoided (asian) community events and any contact with Asian-looking people to deny my origins and blend in with White people. I even longed for a German name and resented my parents for not being German. [It was a result of] what I learned from my surroundings and society - this persistent desire to fit in the White society. [...] When I realized early that I looked different from my peers, I was frustrated [...] You had to prove your worth], so to speak. [...] The confirmation that my value is solely tied to my productivity has always forced me to justify my existence, especially under such princely guilt. - 30s, NBGD, Germany (Gang 2023)

Normalization of embodied racism

Microaggressions are not abstract offenses but embodied racialized experiences that influence how individuals repeatedly perceive themselves and navigate their identities and senses of belonging (Park et al. 2024, Lee et al. 2024).

Reaction to AAR

The discrepancy between the high rate of experiences of racism and the low rate of access to the police may contribute to individuals' hesitance in seeking intervention from official authorities, such as law enforcement, due to limited confidence in the effectiveness of these measures.

Challenges in the National Action Plan

- ★ European Commission (2024) calls for more comprehensive data collection and structural analysis regarding racism, highlighting a lack of inclusion in broader research frameworks.
- ★ Protection remains fragmented, and the anti-racism action plan strategy itself is non-legislative and not legally binding.

[...] It is therefore important that Member States further improve the collection of equality data at all territorial levels and urge all stakeholders to cooperate in the collection of data for equality and non-discrimination purposes
European Commission (2024: 15)

Anti-Racist Initiatives

- ★ One of the adverse consequences of anti-racist mainstreaming is that policies are decontextualized from the lived experience of racialized peoples and promotes a 'universalized vision of equality' (Lentin 2004: 439).
- ★ Crenshaw emphasizes that if anti-racist initiatives only articulate racism along particular dimensions, anti-racist efforts employ 'strategic silence' (Crenshaw 1991: 1253), alerting that such interventions frequently perpetuate these silences.
- ★ [W]ithout a detailed analysis of the role of anti-racism in contemporary societies [...] we shall not be able to understand the changing dynamics of racial ideologies and political mobilizations or the possibilities for defeating racist movements (Back and Solomos 1996: 103).

Social Movements: Counterframes

- ★ Despite facing racism, discrimination and homophobia, many individuals of Asian diaspora are empowered and actively contribute positively to society through their activism and advocacy efforts, thereby facilitating a counterframe (Suda and Köhler 2023). *
- ★ Drawing on social movement framing theory (Benford and Snow 2000) and epistemic justice frameworks (Fricker 2017, Medina 2011), counter-frames allow diasporic actors to contest racialized representations and articulate alternative understandings of Asianness.
- ★ For ethnically minoritized individuals, social identities can be negotiated through collective action and solidarity foster through shared experiences of marginalization (Dixon et al. 2015, Thomas et al. 2012, Okamoto 2003, Kim and Lee 2023a, Kim et al. 2023).

* See also Blum (2007) for 'pluralistic solidarity'; Wang and Li (2023) for 'networked solidarity'; or Gould (2007) for 'overlapping solidaristic networks'.

Transformative counter-frames

- ★ ichbinkeinvirus.org started #ichbinkeinvirus, 'I am not a virus' campaign

Transformative counter-frames

- ★ Asian Raisins (the Netherlands) initiated the Stop Hanky Panky Shanghai campaign in public and in schools.

Transformative counter-frames

- ★ Association des Jeunes Chinois de France initiated the # We belong here campaign.

- ★ Hornbach presented an advertisement showing an Asian woman becoming aroused after smelling dirty laundry worn by white men, ending with a slogan saying: That's how the spring smells.
- ★ A Petition asked for apology for a public apology and the removal of the ad with the hashtag #ich_wurde_geHORNB2ACHt; 42.404 co-signatories.
- ★ The German Advertising Standard Committee (Deutscher Werberat) objected to the ad,
- ★ See here for full infographic of the movement against the advertisement.

Transformative counter-frames

- ★ AVE successfully lobbied the EC to take its first steps in officially recognizing AAR as a standalone category of racial discrimination to be documented and addressed.

- ★ See Asian Voices Europe \(2024: 56\) for the list of organizations which works on AAR.

Transnational counter-frames

Intersectional counter-frames

- ★ When social movements are intersectional, we can build collective power across differences (Lee et al. 2022, 2020, Kim and Lee 2023b).

Cross-racial counter-frames

- ★ Solidarity must be reciprocal: Asian-led groups support Black-led movements and vice versa (Lee et al. 2022, 2020, Kim and Lee 2023b).

Key Takeaway

- ★ Effective antiracism must confront not only overt acts of racism but also the cultural, policy, and institutional norms that perpetuate exclusionary practices (Goldberg 2008).
- ★ The anti-racist works should collaborate directly on civil society organizations from intersectional perspectives.
- ★ The superficial antiracist actions can unintentionally reinforce racism when they coexist with denial. In other words, saying 'I'm not racist' without acknowledging structural racism helps immunize racism against critique. That's a dissonance we see often: antiracist opinions without antiracist accountability.

Appendix A: Impact of Pandemic

Our findings suggest that while the pandemic may have acted as a trigger and exacerbated AAR, it is not the sole or ultimate cause of racism against Asians in Europe.
